Bids for the Buchanan Project, the million dollar gateway to Albany, will be opened at the Albany City Council meeting Monday evening, Sept. 23.

Buchanan Street, widened to four lanes, will be freely accessible to the Eastshore Freeway by overpass. The plan, first formulated in 1957, changed in concept from the original two lane street to four lanes with study of increasing traffic, safety, and convenience.

The take off of the new portion of the rightaway is at Jackson, although all the street will be widened by thirty feet.

Bids to be opened will amount to approximately $800,000.

Eye Clinic At Pre-School Saturday

Vision testing will be given at the Albany Pre-school, 850 Masonic Avenue, for all Albany kindergarten children on Saturday morning, Sept. 14, from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon at no charge.

All Albany parents are urged to take advantage of this special eye clinic. Children are seldom aware of an eye problem, and the need for eye testing is important.

Amblyopia is an eye disorder that is often described as "lazy eye." It is an impairment of the central or sharp vision of the eye and is of particular concern to parents of infants and preschoolers. It has to do with "learning to see." A child who is not discovered to have amblyopia until age six or seven rarely, if ever, can have sharp vision initiated or restored by known medical treatment. It is estimated that about 100,000 children's eyes are passing beyond the help of treatment each year.

The essential thing is that each eye must be tested separately. Unequal vision in a child's eyes is a red flag of danger. Vision testing should be repeated at intervals until the parents and the family physician are satisfied that the child has equally good vision in both eyes. The earlier this can be done, the better.

The critical period, according to Albany health nurse Frieda Hanelt, is between the ages of one and seven. "Actually," she says, "it should be done before the child is four years old."

Albany Pre-school mothers will assist in the clinic.

INVENTORY OF ALBANY PRESENTED BY RUTH AND KRUSHKOV TO CITY

INVENTORY OF ALBANY POINTED OUT BY HERMAN RUTH TO MAYOR JOSEPH EGENBERGER, JR. AND CITY ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER JAMES B. TURNER.

Existing land use in Albany was presented to the Albany City Council and the Planning and Zoning Commission by Herman Ruth of Ruth & Krushkov, Berkeley planning consultants, Thursday evening, Sept. 5, at a work session of the first phase of future development for the city.

Ruth, speaking before the Albany Chamber of Commerce and the City Council in July, answered the question, "Why does a fully developed city need a plan?" His reply: "A plan is a guide for growth and future development."

It would include a commercial area to attract business to this area; answer the question of proper land usages for multiple development; offer suggestions for productively using Albany Hill; optimum utilization of the waterfront; study new sources of tax revenue; provide a program of priorities.

"We can help clarify and provide a goal," said Ruth, "then it is up to the people and commercial organizations to provide the money. The first stage is to take inventory..."

The inventory, presented Thursday night, evaluated existing land use. Every parcel of land was tabulated by Ruth and Krushkov, and added up to 3200 acres, or five square miles, of industrial development, apartments, homes, business firms, schools, parks, circulation, water, and vacant or undeveloped land. The findings showed that there have been land changes; duplexes and apartments tend to reach over two or three blocks off commercial streets. In areas where there is no insulation, Ruth said, it is surprising how residential areas have been adhered to and maintained.

Ruth found no continuous pattern in many of the streets, they lead away from the focal point of industrial or commercial development. Washington and Portland are throughways, yet don't go any place. Main arteries obviously were laid out for street cars, trolley cars and buses.

The southern and northern boundaries were made by former natural barriers — creeks — and now many are piped so that the lines "do not make much sense."

In the present distribution of urban land uses, Ruth found:

Residential: Single family, 378.60 acres or 34.91 per cent; two family, 8.40 acres or .76 per cent; multi-family, 60.90 acres or 5.61 per cent. Sub-total, 447.90 or 41.31 per cent.

Commercial: Retail, 5.28 acres or .49 per cent; prof. & admin., 2.30 acres or .21 per cent; service and highway commercial, 16.72 acres or 1.55 per cent; commercial recreation, 132.30 acres or 12.20 per cent. Sub-total, 156 acres or 14.44 per cent.

Industrial: 31.00 acres or 2.86 per cent.

Community facilities, all types: Educational, 39.70 acres or 3.66 per cent; civic and government land, 16.80 acres or 1.55 per cent; institutional, 81 acres or .77 per cent; parks, .73 acres or .07 per cent. Sub-total, 58.04 acres or 5.36 per cent.

Circulation, all types: Freeways, 51.20 acres or 4.72 per cent; railroads, 6.60 acres or .61 per cent. (Continued on Page 3)

The next phase, according to Ruth, will be to refine the findings on a larger scale relating the use of land to the success of future development and to examine the existing circulation pattern. A consumer reaction, he stated, would be of benefit.

Vice-mayor Lewis Howell stated he would recommend at the city council meeting a "Goals and Objectives Committee" of Albany citizens and businessmen to study guide lines, get public opinion and reaction, and blueprint possible objectives desirable for the city.

Councilman Joe Carlevaro said the committee should include a representative from the Chamber of Commerce, school board, churches, and other civic groups. "Rehabilitation," he said, "has to come."

"One of the most frequent fires in the home during the winter and fall months, says fireman William Ledgerwood "is the furnace fire."

The cause of these fires is generally from the collection of lint or other debris that has collected in the furnace during the idle months of spring and summer. Good housekeeping should include attention to the furnace. If you have the floor type of furnace your vacuum cleaner has an attachment for cleaning of this kind.

The forced air or blower type furnace needs attention to the blower mechanism. This should be properly lubricated. The hot air and return runs should be cleaned. If you have not the proper means of doing this cleaning a qualified person who specializes in this type of work should be contacted.

Be sure your filters have been changed. Dirty filters put an undue strain on the blower motor and may result in it overheating.

Never cover any of the furnace openings with rugs or other material. Clothes should never be dried over furnaces. Many fires have resulted from this practice. You should consider your furnace as you would any other appliance of your home. With proper care and use your furnace will give many years of untroubled comfort to your home.

Program on Bodega Bay Scheduled At Center

"A nuclear reactor at Bodega Bay — power plant or bomb?" will be one of the questions discussed at a public meeting this Thursday, Sept. 12, at 8 p.m. in the Albany Community Center, 8th and Monroe Streets.

The discussion is being sponsored by the Berkeley-Albany Democratic Study and Action Club on behalf of the public interest. The center of controversy is the Pacific Gas and Electric Company's plan to develop a nuclear power plant near the San Andreas Fault on Bodega Bay.

Timothy Fine, who made arrangements for the program, has persuaded two noted speakers to address interested citizens. Mr. Hal Stroube, Director of Atomic Information for PG&E, will speak first, explaining his company's position in terms of progress and economy. Opposing the plan on principles of conservation and safety, Mr. Dave Pesonen, Executive Secretary of the Northern California Association to Preserve Bodega Head and Harbor, will then speak against the placement of the reactor at Bodega Head.

There will be a question and answer period following each talk. According to publicity chairman, Karen Profet, the public is invited at no admission charge. Refreshments will be served.

Albany Student Returns From European Tour

Arthur Smith II, American Red Cross Centenary Delegate, representing the Berkeley-Albany Red Cross Chapter was greeted at San Francisco Airport by many of his friends and relatives on his arrival home at 11:30 a.m., Sept. 3, following his extensive tour that began on July 23 when he left for Washington, D.C.

Following his orientation he traveled to the following countries: Rome, Italy; Athens, Greece; Cairo, Egypt; Belgrade, Yugoslavia; Zurich, Geneva, Paris, France; back to New York City and home.

His travels to the many points of interest within Europe. In Rome they had a private audience with the Pope. In Greece they visited the Acropolis and other historical points in a four day tour that included travel by bus, train and boat. In Egypt all points of interest starting with the pyramids. The Sphinx were visited and an additional mode of travel was added; the riding of camels. In Yugoslavia they were taken by bus to visit the City of Skopje (victim of the disastrous earthquake). In Geneva they participated in the Red Cross Centenary observances.

He visited and had work-studies with members of the Italian Red Cross Society, youth representatives of the Hellenic (Greek) Red Cross Society, youth representatives of the Red Crescent Society of the United Arab Republic, representatives of the Yugoslav Red Cross Society. During his travels to the various countries he had a reunion with youth that he met while being one of the hosts to the Vista Program (Visiting International Students to America) while they were in San Francisco in July 1962.

Arthur is entering his senior year at Albany High School. He and his parents publicly wish to express their gratitude and thanks to the American National Red Cross and the Berkeley-Albany Chapter for having afforded him the opportunity to be one of the 16 youths throughout the United States that were chosen for the Centenary Youth Caravan.

MISS IRENE E. BRUSCHI, 1240 Sheffield Place, Thousand Oaks is one of 400 students who will enter Upsala College, East Orange, N. J., as freshmen in September.

ERN STAR will honor it's brothers. They are cordially invited to come and enjoy their evening with special entertainment for them. A very pleasant evening is planned and we do hope our brothers will plan to be with us. Make it a date Sept. 20, 8:00 p.m.

TEACHING AND TOURING

A YEAR IN EUROPE

FREEMAN SARGENT
Artist and Teacher

After a year of teaching at the Karlsruhe High School in Karlsruhe, Germany, Freeman Sargent, Albany High School teacher of art, is back in Albany with international experiences to share with his current crop of students.

Sargent kept a diary of the European "tour of duty" and from his opening observation: "Our year is an adventure and aside from my primary function as a teacher, we tried to act, see and live with the Germans . . ." to his concluding "This has been a good year. One in which each of us has absorbed much more than could be put down on paper. Our family is happy to have made the many sacrifices necessary to come on such a teaching assignment. It has been truly worth while . . ." his account highlights all phases of culture and custom.

THE SCHLOSS

"Our first real studios visit to the Schloss was made one Sunday noon," he noted. "This is a ruined castle since the original was heavily damaged during the second world war. The work of repairing is continuing and progresses slowly. The castle was built in 1715 by Margrave Karl Wilhelm mainly as a refuge from his nagging wife. It all goes to show that male and female problems were not limited to the 20th century. Additions to the castle were made continually until the destruction in 1944. Now most of it is a beautifully landscaped center of interest.

"The lovely opera house and theater was almost completely destroyed in the war. The ruins are charming and probably will not be restored. It has some of the appearance of our "Palace of Fine Arts" but on a much grander scale. The Castle is remodelled in a classical style with modern fixture and large gallery areas. It is now a city museum and houses some fine examples of German carvings from the 13-

14th Centuries, stain glass from the same period and Roman artifacts from the 10th and 11th centuries. There are also rooms containing interesting Baroque sculpture as well as fine examples of Meissen China. The castle is built on a mathematical lucidity and all roads go out from the center. This is somewhat similar to the way Washington D. C. is laid out. "After we left the castle, we walked a short distance through the gardens to the City Art Gallery. Here we found a show which could be considered conservative by most tastes. Compared to San Francisco and New York, it might be called old fashioned. The work, however, is excellent and in good taste. Carl Hofer and Franz Marc were the two most noted artists on display. Next, we walked a short distance and stumbled, since we do not plan on this, on a one man show of Max Beckmann, the German expressionist. I cannot honestly say I enjoyed the show. There is a great sameness about his work and so much is typical of the German attitude after both world wars. I did find them unusual and interesting in their looseness of technique. Most of his portraits are vital and strong but other areas are so completely disregarded that the show as a whole meant little to me." LICHTEINSTEIN "Everything is in the process of bursting into Spring," noted Sargent on this phase of his European sightseeing. "The hills are a glorious Kelly green and blossoms, white and pink are everywhere. The poplars and other trees are again full of green leaves and the foliage is lacy in texture. The whole landscape has an unreal picture post card atmosphere. On this day we headed for Lichtenstein. "This is a castle located up in the Stuttgart area and is not the Duchy. When we finally found the castle, we were enchanted. It is more of a doll's castle than anything. This was one of the important hideouts for the robber barons. They would watch from their perfect vantage point to see when travelers from the road below would be coming their way, then they proceeded to go down and rob them. It is impossible to look more like a stage set than anything. The rooms are most tiny, and each room is furnished with stain glass, paintings of Schwabish Art, and hundreds of beer steins of every size and shape. The armor from the knights of old still watches over the rooms. FASCHIN "One of the typical European customs which we have run into is called Faschin. It begins at the 11th second of the 11th minute of the 11th month and continues until Ash Wednesday. A king and queen are selected but things do not really get humming until after Christmas. It corresponds roughly to the Mardi Gras of the Latin countries. Originally it was for frightening the evil spirits of winter and also to let off steam before Lent.

"I had heard of an American being welcome. It is a Baron Von Brandenstein's wife, both speaking English. When we got there, every one was decorating for a party the following week and I volunteered to help. So I painted a large full wall mural—the subject was 'In Hell.' There were many ians, Turks, Negroes, and races mixing freely and ly enjoying the evening. lowing week, I went to Ball. Costumes were in I wore levis and army original! But it really is EXTRAORDINARY how it leans and still stands. They expect it to fall in the year 2100 unless they can do something to save it. It now leans three-fourths of an inch more than when Sally (Mrs. Sargent) was here in 1937. We all climbed on foot to the very top and took some pictures and looked over the city. The cathedral and baptistry were made almost entirely of marble taken from the Roman and Greek temples. Many of the marble stones have the beautifully chiseled letters and identifying names of the original stone carvers in Greek and Latin."

A NOTE ON VENICE
"Venice was, except for the smells, a wonderful fantasy of a city. The pictures we have seen in books and paintings by Turner, Guardi and others have not exaggerated the fairyland atmosphere of the city. The square was full of tourists and birds. I couldn't help thinking of Blanche Vrana at this time. She would have been in 7th or 8th heaven. I could imagine from the hubbub of the pigeons they were telling their friends: 'this was for the people,' but I noticed they didn't refuse any of the corn we fed them. Corn sellers were everywhere and I shouldn't be surprised if some of them didn't come out at night to pick up a fat snack or two for the next day's meal."

Can This Be Possible?

As our first-born bustled around the house getting ready to attend her first day in Albany High, we found ourselves wondering just how in the world time had passed so rapidly that we now have a child in High School. Why, it just seems a few years ago that we remembered walking up to that same school on our first day, with some trepidation, to what was then called Herbert Hoover Jr. High. We passed the old Santa Fe Tower house at Solano and the tracks, down Masonic where Mr. MacGregor was just building some new houses, crossed a vacant lot (amongst many other vacant lots) on Spokane Ave., and arrived at the new 2-story frame building then known as "The Barn."

From that time, many wonderful adventures opened to us, and we met many fine teachers, a few of whom are still at the High School and will be teaching the second generation. We can well imagine that this morning they might be saying: "This is where I came in."
